WAR FOOD ADMINISTRATION
Food Production Administration

January 11, 1944
FOOD PRODUCTION MEMORANDUM NO.10

Functions of the Feed and Livestock Branch,
Food Production Administration

The Feed and Livestock Branch will provide a central point of contact in the Food Production Administration for producers of livestock, livestock products, feed grains, and other livestock feeds, and will bring to a focus the problems of these producers and assist in their solution. It will also develop and coordinate programs carried out by constituent agencies of FPA to attain production goals for livestock, livestock products, feed grains, and other livestock feeds. This Branch will cooperate and work closely with other appropriate organization units of the War Food Administration and other agencies when problems of mutual interest are involved.

The Branch will be responsible for:

- (1) Planning and directing the execution of national programs to secure the most effective utilization of feed grains and other livestock feeds, and maintain a proper balance between livestock production and available feed supplies;
- (2) Relating estimates of future supplies of feed, livestock, and livestock products to established requirements;
- (3) Developing annual or periodic national production goals for feed, livestock and livestock products;
- (4) Determining production requirements, such as labor, machinery, and credit, and marketing requirements, such as storage, transportation, and containers; (Activities of the Branch relating to storage, transportation, and containers, will be concerned primarily with on-farm and related problems in these fields up to the point of first concentration)
- (5) Maintaining current information on progress in attaining proper utilization of feed grains and other livestock feeds;
- (6) Formulating and directing the enforcement and administration of Food Production Orders governing production of livestock and the production and utilization of feed;
- (7) Establishing necessary contacts with trade channels;
- (8) Carrying out special program assignments in the feed and livestock field.
